

The House with Chicken Legs by Sophie Anderson is about a young girl called Marinka who dreams of a normal house where she wakes up in the same place each day. However, her house has chicken legs and moves from place to place without warning. This frustrates Marinka because it makes it almost impossible for her to make friends but despite being warned, Marinka risks everything to have a real-life friend.

I loved this story and the adventures within it. I found it very difficult to put down.
