

Vlad and the Great Fire of London is one of my favourite picture books. It is all about a rat and a flea who were sleeping in Puddling Lane when the Great Fire of London began. Boxtor and his tiny friend Vlad tried their best to escape the fire but on their journey, they uncovered many events which will show you what really happened during the fire. They even see some people that you may recognise.

This story is very funny and I love the illustrations too.

I would definitely recommend this book.
