

We have been thinking about Winter and what we see around us. We know that the trees lost their leaves in the Autumn. We have seen a little bit of snow and our we have explored ice, indoors and out.

So today we decided to be Artists. We have talked about how artists can paint, they can draw, they can cut and snip, glue and stick, to name but a few.

We mixed the white and blue paint together. Gracie noticed that the blue became "light blue".

Charlie liked choosing the type of brush he wanted to use and watching the colours change as he mixed them.

We worked as a team to cover our piece of work with all different blues that we mixed with different styles of brushes.

Then we used Winter sticks to make spikey snowflake marks in the wet paint.

Amelia used the star cutter to print a glue shape onto the piece then carefully sprinkle blue glitter onto the shape.

Annaya used a sponge dabber to print white spots. "It's snowing!" said Amelia.

The children carried on cutting, sticking and creating.

The final piece was spectacular and looked very cold and wintery!

Some of our Artist we so inspired by our group work that they decided to have a go at creating their own pieces of work using some of the techniques we'd explored together.
