

Today we have been exploring ice!

When we first thought about what we might be looking at, the only clue was this mould.

Rory said, "Maybe it's a Numberblock."

Charlotte said, "It looks like Lego".

Ella then came up with a super idea! "Maybe it's for ice". She was right.

Everyone was given a piece of ice to hold.

"Mine's really cold," said Louie. "It's slippery," said Harriett.

"It's melting," cried Logan. "Because it's dripping," said Charlotte.

"It's turning to water," said Pixie. Louie knew that our hands were warm and that was why the ice was melting.

Pixie told us that to make ice we needed to put water in the mould and put it in the freezer.

It's been so cold outside that the water in our outdoor kitchen had frozen too. It was fun to smash it into pieces. There was enough for everyone to hold a piece.

It was different shapes but it was just like the ice we had played with from the freezer.

“It’s slipping off my hand,” said Woody. “I need two hands!”

“My hands are getting cold,” Esme.
