

Diwali Day in FI

We have celebrated the Hindu festival of Diwali, the Festival of Light.

As well as listening to the story of Rama and Sita, the children found out from our special book, 'The Best Diwali Ever', exactly what we needed to help our celebrations go to plan...

Yasmeen remembered that Arianna and her family had put up decorations, Carson and Jacob remembered that we needed some food.

Arianna's family wore special, colourful clothes. So did we! Lots of us loved dressing up in traditional dress and took on the role of Rama or Sita. Some new 'friendships' seemed to be blossoming too!

Florence and Lottie painted beautiful Rangoli patterns, just like Arianna made.

There were some amazing dance moves going on just like the people in our book!

We made celebratory firework sparklers, which Arianna loved watching with her little brother.

Then we made our own special Diwali sweet treats by crumbling up sponge cake, mixing it up with buttercream, then rolling them up in sprinkles. They tasted delicious!

Brody said, "It's starting to stick!" Musa added, "Then need sprinkles."

When the children had made their special sweet treats they were able to sit in our 'Diwali' home to eat them...

"Delicious," said Autumn. Yasmeeen said, "My Diwali treat is good!"

Roman told us, "It was taste very yummy." A super try at a full sentence!

Carson thought, "It's good."

Brody also said, "It was delicious!"

Just like our book, this really has been the best Diwali ever!
