

rabbi

A teacher of Jewish law.

twinkl.com

rabbi

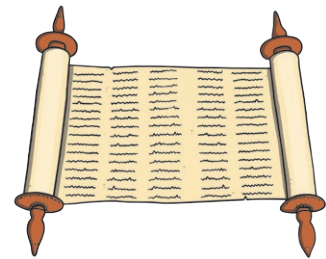

A teacher of Jewish law.

twinkl.com

Torah

The Five Books of Moses: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

twinkl.com

skull cap

A cap that covers the head, during prayer, eating and studying.

twinkl.com

Star of David

Known as the shield of David, this is a well known symbol of Judaism.

twinkl.com

Kippah

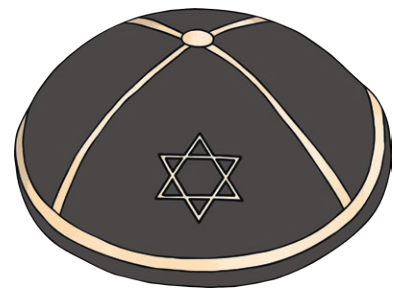

A cap that covers the head during prayer, eating and studying.

twinkl.com

Kippot

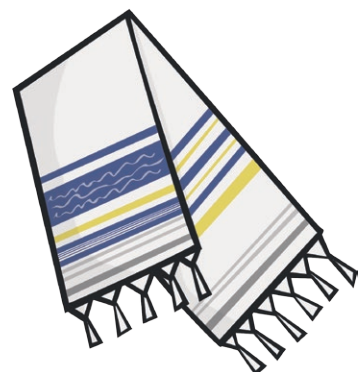

A cap that covers the head, during prayer, eating and studying.

twinkl.com

Tallit

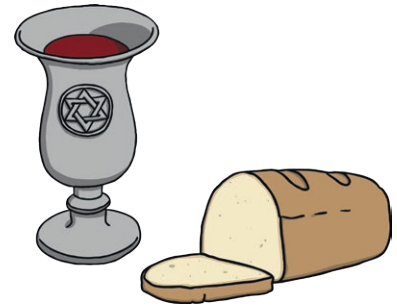

Worn on top of your clothes in the synagogue, especially during Sabbath.

twinkl.com

Shabbat

The seventh day of the Jewish week, which is a day of rest and is often used for prayer.

twinkl.com

Hanukkah

The Jewish festival of lights, traditionally celebrated in November or December.

twinkl.com

menorah

A nine branched candle lit during the eight-day holiday of Hanukkah.

twinkl.com

seder plate

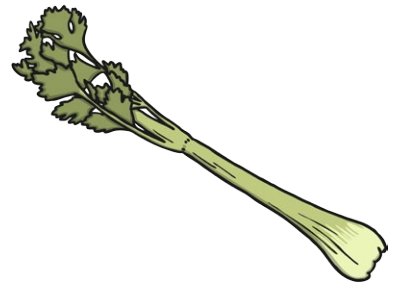

A plate on which the symbolic foods of the seder are placed, including lamb, bitter herbs, roasted egg and horseradish.

twinkl.com

celery

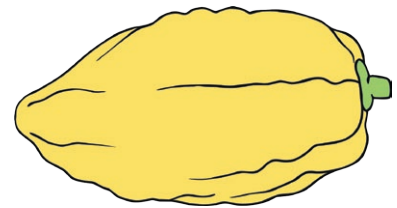

Eaten at Passover as part of the karpas (vegetables), celery is dipped in salt water at the start of the meal.

twinkl.com

etrog

A yellow citrus fruit used during the week-long holiday of Sukkot, a holiday marking the end of harvest time.

twinkl.com

dreidel

A Jewish gambling toy with a letter of the Hebrew alphabet on each side meaning "a great miracle happened there."

twinkl.com

horseradish

Eaten at Passover, this is a bitter herb to remind Jews of the bitterness of slavery endured by their ancestors.

twinkl.com

matzos

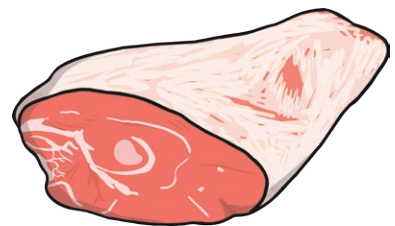

Taken during Passover, this is a cracker type of bread made without yeast. It was created when Jews had to flee Egypt.

twinkl.com

lamb

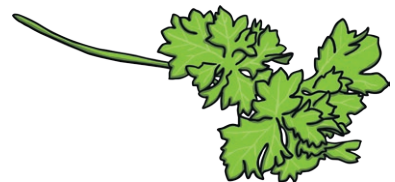

Eaten during Passover to remember the sacrifice made the night the ancient Hebrews fled Egypt.

twinkl.com

parsley

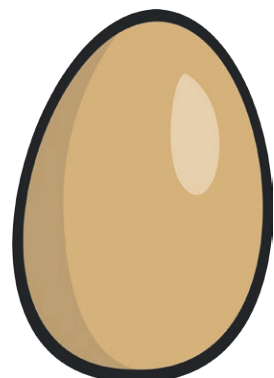

A herb dipped in salt water at the beginning of Passover to represent the salty tears cried by the slaves.

twinkl.com

roasted egg

Eaten at Passover as a symbol of the sacrificial offering performed in the days of the Second Temple.

twinkl.com

wine

Taken during Passover, traditionally four cups are present to represent the four biblical promises of redemption.

twinkl.com

prayer

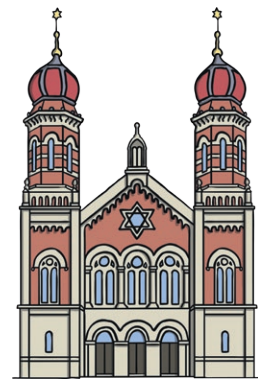

The Torah refers to prayer as “the service of the heart,” an act of love and reverence towards God.

twinkl.com

synagogue

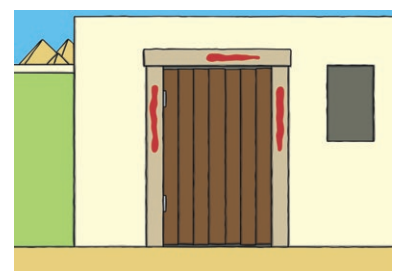

A Jewish place of worship, prayer, a place of study and sometimes a community centre.

twinkl.com

Passover

A celebration of the Jewish people's freedom from slavery in ancient Egypt. They were led out of Egypt by Moses.

twinkl.com

rabbi

A teacher of Jewish law.

