

History and Geography in Key Stage One

History and geography are taught through the learning challenge curriculum. This enables teachers to follow children's interests whilst developing the skills required for history and geography. Cross-curricular links are made with ICT, literacy and mathematics where appropriate allowing children to develop these areas of learning during geography and history lessons. Outdoor learning gives children exciting opportunities to apply skills taught particularly in geography. Throughout KS1 educational visits provide valuable learning opportunities and are often linked to either geography or history to broaden the children's experiences.
