

What can I do with History?

If you are curious about lives and events in the past and why things happened the way they did...

you'll find that studying History develops skills such as...

- The ability to put forward ideas and arguments effectively
- The ability to view problems in a wider context
- Investigative skills
- Research and evaluation
- Organisational
- Problem solving
- Communication
- Independent working
- Creative thinking
- Cultural awareness

Skills sought by employers in...

Publishing
Companies
Central & Local Government

TV & Radio Broadcasting
Management Consultancies
Information Management
International Relations
Criminal Investigation

Public Sector

Tourism

Culture

Business

Education

Insurance

Advertising

Marketing

Archiving

Law Firms

Historic Preservation

ENGLISH HERITAGE

National Trust

So, History is useful if you want to be a

Museum Curator

Lawyer

Teacher/Lecturer

Journalist

Policy Analyst

Academic Librarian

Archivist

Writer

Human Resources Officer

Tour Guide

Heritage Manager

Editor

Historical Consultant

Administrator

Information Officer

But the skills
it develops will be helpful in many other jobs too.

Want to know more about any of these roles?

A scroll of aged parchment with a slightly torn edge, unrolled to reveal text. The text is written in a black, serif font. The scroll is set against a white background.

Your Careers Advisor will be happy to help!