

KS3 Science

HARRY COOK

Since joining the school in Year 7 Harry's love of science has been clear. No matter the topic Harry can always add some extra ideas to the lesson or ask some interesting questions, really enriching the education of others in his class. He also works incredibly hard to excel – always pushing himself in class and at home and revising thoroughly for assessments. We have also been impressed with how hard Harry tries with his handwriting. This is something he finds challenging but he never gives in and always aims to produce his work well presented.